

form State Treasurer Danforth and Controller Campbell, who have charge of the State's funds, that the bank was in a precarious condition, and

It was after this date that Mr. Danforth put $20,000 additional in the bank.

I know nothing about it, for Mr. Preston, who is now absent from Albany, then was here and of the Madison Square was only $50,000, possibly Mr. Preston did not think the bank was entitled to the Controller and the State Treasurer's guarantees to make the impairment good.

New-York and was examining the Madison Square Bank during the month of July. This report of Mr. Judson to Mr. Preston may have been of a confidential nature.

Is it the custom of the Bank Department to waive the Controller and the State Treasurer if a bank contains State funds in its care?"

"I knew it to be done upon one occasion," said Mr. Hall, cautiously.

"Was it done upon this occasion?"

"I do not know."

"Mr. Hall, caution," Mr. Preston leave Albany and go to New-York."

"Upon the 1st of August."

On the 1st of August that the State Treasurer Danforth put $50,000 into the Madison Square Bank. But, according to Bank Examiner Judson, the Controller and the State Treasurer had been notified at Albany that the capital of the bank was impaired. Why did not Superintendent Preston at Albany refuse to permit the State Treasurer to deposit Danforth of the bank's condition?

Deputy Controller Huzon said yesterday that the Controller had been notified of the condition of the bank until Tuesday of last week. Then it was that he and State Treasurer Danforth signed the check for the $50,000 to the Madison Square Bank. It looks as if Superintendent Preston had neglected to inform the State Treasurer of the position of the Madison Square, and thus had permitted Danforth to put $50,000 more of the State's money in a dangerous place.

SIX SHIPLOADS OF PASSENGERS.

THEY SAIL FOR VARIOUS EUROPEAN PORTS—NAMES OF SOME OF THEM.

Upon summer was six ocean liners are on their way from New-York to Havre, to Liverpool, to Rotterdam, to Glasgow and Genoa. They departed from this port yesterday, carrying with them many prominent passengers. Among those who were on the French liner La Normandie bound for Havre were Mrs. R. D. Andrews and children, General E. del Campo, Colonel Romanoff, a Russian Imperial Guard, and an officer of the Russian Imperial Guard, and a French Consul General to Canada, and Mrs. and Mrs. Camille Lefebvre, Mrs. E. E. Foote, Count de Meuse and Professor L. M. Terquem.

The North German Lloyd steamer Pulda sailed for Genoa.

William Howe, well-known on account of his exploits at Monte Carlo, and William Howe, jr., the son of "The Man Who Broke the Bank at Monte Carlo," were passengers on the Anchor Line steamer Furnessia bound for Glasgow.

On the Gulon Line steamer Arizona, bound for Liverpool, were Doloresy Kiralfy, the showman; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Lightfoot, Dr. Lucien Howe and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Buckland.

MISS AMY BUSBY SEEKS DIVORCE.

SHE WANTS TO BE SEPARATED FROM AUBREY DOUGICAULT—ANOTHER ACTRESS THE CO-RESPONDENT.

Aubrey Doucicault, who was thought until recently to give more or less promise, most people said, less of perpetuating his father's varied talents, now finds himself in a matrimonial tangle. He is a young actor of some ability, whose work has received encouraging praise. His wife, Amy Doucicault, better known as Miss Amy Busby, is suing him for absolute divorce under the laws of New York, and names as co-respondent Miss Victory Bateman. Mr. Doucicault, in the course of his company, met Miss Bushy. She is the talented and beautiful daughter of a leading member of Rochester's business and social circles, and the engagement with Mr. Robson was her first appearance in the theatrical world. Even then she attracted notice for her beauty and graceful manners. She was attracted by young Bonicault, and no one was surprised when their engagement and then their marriage were announced.

Mr. Bonicault's first introduction of his wife to his friends in New-York was in the course of the run of "The English Rose" at Proctor's Twenty.

Malloy, the young squire. The young couple lived in handsome style in a suite of apartments at No. 44 West Twenty-fifth-st., and entertained some of the best people in their profession. Among their guests were Arthur Rehau, the well-known manager; William Fiedschman, who was then planning the subsequently disastrous tour of E. G. Hewlet and Bonedant; Staudslaus Stange, the adapter of "Fried Fritz"; and others well known on the stage or in connection with it.

stated his claim to the forthcoming Rochester and the Henley-Boudinault-Plettschmann combination as made. The company was to open in San Francisco, and in the mean time Mrs. Boudinault returned to her father's house in Rochester. The company opened with a racing play, "The Favorite," in which Mr. Boudinault played a young sportsman, and Mr. Henley a French bookmaker, and on their arrival in leading woman. It was then that reports began to reach Mrs. Boncualt that induced her to bring the present suit. She has retained Robert H. Griffin, Colonel Ingersoll's office, as counsel, and the proceedings are now well under way.

Miss Busby has alternated between Mr. Robson's and Mr. Crane's companies. She played at first in "The Herriottia" with Mr. Robson. After a time she joined Mr. Crane, and played with him last season at the star Theatre in "on Probation." Then she went back to Mr. Robson when he was at the Wisconsin Avenue Theatre last spring, and played in "The

When she is to be in Mr. Ziegler's company, Miss Hanley's Intimate is back a member of Lawrence's Hanley's company, which is giving "The Players," at the star Theatre. Mr. Bourcault is not especially familiar as an actor in New-York, though he has been seen on the stage here at times.

CONGRESS TOO MUCH FOR THE JAPANESE

THE PRINCE UNABLE TO SOLVE ITS MYSTERY
—HE WILL TRY CHICAGO NEXT.

The Shokoi Matsura, of Japan, came back to the city last night, sailing much at the intricacies of American politics and at the ways of American statesmen. He went to Washington on Monday to see how laws were made by Congress. He was accompanied by his indus Achates, his tutor, to whom he gave these instructions at the start:

"Stand by me, Tower of Strength, in case of an emergency. Wink the other eye at me in warning if any one tries to stuff me; but do not explain to me how things are done. I prefer to find out for myself."

"Your Majesty's massive brain and eagle eye will comprehend everything at a glance," answered the tutor folding his hands upon his breast.

"I am named a mistake; I'd like to for "Well, what does the Transcendent One think of

"Is it for publication?" asked the Prince.
"Yes, Star of the Empire, the reporters are below and wish to quote you."
"Tell them," said the Prince, "that I enjoyed my visit to Washington immensely. Tell them I was much impressed by the august assemblages in the Senate Chamber and the House of Representatives of the Capitol. But, by the sacred person of the Mikado, do tell them that the wisdom of the Flower of Tokio was not sufficient to enable him to find out what the Democratic majority was trying to do."
"I will do so," said the tutor, "and I will add, Majesty," answered the tutor, "it is said that even the President has been obliged to confess it."
The Prince continued his travels yesterday. He will visit several cities on his way across the continent, and will spend some time at the World's Fair.

Next popular Day Coach Excursion to the World's Fair, New York, Oct. August 28. The Hudson River, Mohawk Valley and Niagara Falls by daylight. Only $20 round trip.